BACKGROUND ON SOCIAL NORMS AND COMMUNITY BASED CARE PROJECT

This project is the pilot of a three year programme titled "Social Norms and Community-based Care Programming in Humanitarian Settings: Building 'Good Practice' Approaches for Response to and Primary Prevention of Sexual Violence against Women and Girls Affected by Conflict".

The project aims to advance and implement approaches to primary prevention of and response to GBV, especially sexual violence against women and girls affected by conflict and disaster that will include the development of evidence-based 'good practices'. An important focus will be on strengthening positive social norms (including going beyond the typical approach of changing knowledge, attitudes and practices) that protect women and girls from violence and leveraging societal dynamics to change social norms that serve to hide or actually encourage forms of violence. The social norms perspective applied throughout the project will promote the establishment of self-sustaining social rules that are upheld by social rewards and punishments that will eventually be further reinforced through legislation, policies and the concrete activities that support communities.

For comparative purposes an intervention and control design (drafted from UNICEF Headquarters & John Hopkins University), modified to the identified local contexts, will be used. This will allow the measurement of change in service uptake associated with sexual violence in areas covered by trained CHWs as well as to assess changes in social norms associated with the sustained use of sexual violence by men and boys against women and girls.
